SATURDAY MORNING MAY 26 1883

CROP PROSPECTS

At the times when crop reports are most important they are unfortunately least accurate For example at this season of the year it is impossible to say precisely what the harvest will be So much depends on the weather between May and latter July that predictions are largely guesswork In the Willamette valley just now there are two classes of wheat fields those sown in March and others sown in May Between these seedings times there was an unusually long season of rain which prevented seeding operations in April which with Oregon farmers is the favorite month for spring sowing Both the March and May sown fields are now in fine condition but it is feared that if from this time on there shall be enough rain for the latter the former will be in danger of rust, and in the other event, if there shall be sufficient dry weather to perfectly mature the early fields, the late fields will suffer from drouth The situation is not very serious but it is occasioning some uneasiness among farmers.

The crop report of the department of agriculture for this month just now at hand is much more favorable than the Ohio state board quoted by us two or three weeks ago. The probable shortage of winter wheat in the whole country, as estimated by the Ohio board, was 100,000,000 bushels while the department of agriculture places the shortage at 23 000 000 less or 77,000,000 bushels. The department says that the increase in acreage of spring wheat of 20 per cent in Dakota and of 15 per cent in Washington territory is furnished by the local agents, and adds that it is not probable that the increase in spring wheat area will more than equal the loss of winter wheat acreage. What is to say, the acreage of both lands together will be substantially the same as last year, and the only [illegible] condition or "stand" [illegible] that must be subtracted [illegible] yield. A medium yield being [illegible] figure 100, the present prospect is represented by 80. The May returns [illegible] and 1000 were 99, in 1881, 88; in 1882, [illegible] of last year came to 104 at the [illegible] and simmered to something [illegible] The estimates of [illegible] range from 383,000,000 to 530,- [illegible] yield of the census year (1880)

CLERICAL INDUSTRY

One of the strongest arguments advanced by the friends of England against the introduction of monarchy by which the United Kingdom is governed is the church and state policy which has made the cruelest liars of the Christian religion the willing slaves of the [illegible] right of kings This argument to the progress of liberty and equality mankind for as the world is inhabited by [illegible] by day it holds in every [illegible] of human right heaven, the [illegible] institution of divine right to take [illegible] But the facts are [illegible] church of England is an asylum of refuge for the vilest scoundrels [illegible] the [illegible] under the laws [illegible] Lazars with whom they are often [illegible] knowledge consanguinity

The president of Amherst college and [illegible] has an institution in Harvard [illegible] has recently got himself into a [illegible] by [illegible] Congress [illegible] Mr Hitchcock [illegible] the weakness here in the young man [illegible] gratuitous education which [illegible] ideas and habits that run through life He says in substance that it is [illegible] be taken care of other men take care of themselves There is much truth in this opinion of President Elliot

And yet the rule is full of exceptions one of which we take great pleasure in [illegible] In an Idaho town dwelt a young [illegible] clergyman of demure manner and delicate physique But under his slight figure and fragile exterior he was as full of the leaven of pugnacity as if he had been nurtured on horse radish and weaned on fish hooks In a word, he was a bundle of nerves His congregation was unhappily divided into two cliques and for a long time the young pastor strove with laudable zeal to harmonize these oddfishing elements As might have been expected, he not only failed to reconcile them but got soundly abused by both sides, into the bargain It ended by his resigning his pastorate out of sheer self-respect and innate dignity

He was determined to show that he was no pensioner upon the public and that hard work and he were old friends The first thing he did was to take a contract for chopping and rafting to market two thousand cords of fire wood, on which he realized a net profit of one dollar per cord for about five months' work. He built a cabin on the site of a deserted mining camp and cooked his own bacon and frijoles like a mule-packer of the Argonautic era, and when winter spread her snowy carpet over the lovely Boise valley the industrious little parson had his next little hoard and a balance in the bank to his credit.

The cause of christianity demands in the ranks of its votaries more of that stubborn stuff and sterling fiber which led the Idaho parson to show his congregation that he was a worker in the Lord's harvest-field and not a mendicant His example was good in all its teachings and eminently worthy of emulation. The church must be sound in body before it can hope to become sound in mind, and those who espouse the calling of a minister of the gospel should be taught that the christian church is neither an asylum for imbeciles nor an almshouse for serious 'dudes' who are afraid of work No cheerful man should be afraid of a little hard work and the real object of religion is to make mankind cheerful Decrease the number of churches by rebuking sectarianism, give better salaries and employ fewer preachers, induce more people to go to one church, and there will be less ground for remarks like those of President Elliot of Harvard There is a great deal of cause for that gentleman's assertions to be sure, but we should take much pleasure in introducing him to our plucky little Idaho parson.

Forty or more wholesale houses print a notice this morning that they will close at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoons during the summer, beginning to-day. This is a generous movement to give employes a weekly half-holiday.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 26, 1883.

THE EAST SIDE.

EAST PORTLAND CITY GUARDS.

A number of those interested in organizing a military company in East Portland met at Neppach's hall last evening accord ng to announcement. Capt. J. M. Mooney called the meeting to order and stated its object. W. W. McGuire was elected secretary pro tem. The secretary read a letter from Brigadier General Benemeel Miller appointing Capt. J. M. Mooney to preside over the meeting. The accepted roll of candidates for membership was then read, and is as follows:

J. Mooney	Samuel Terstch
F. M. Manson	C. W. Browning
Wm. R. Long	C. B. McQuesten
H. P. Lind	J. E. Chenoit
M. C. Bond	W. Vaughan
Charles Browning	J. McGarney
Samuel Brand	E. W. McMillin
J. Dryden	John Price
J. W. Graham	H. C. Colby
John Driscol	F. L. Lent
John Sullivan	J. H. Hamilton
J. W. Bliger	W. W. McGuire
J. Benoit	G. A. Hodges
W. A. McCalla	S. Gosland
Jas. McGraw	S. A. Hughes
E. McPherson	W. S. McMillin
P. Hill	M. A. Robertson
Robert Myers	John Byers
C. D. Short	Geo. Markel
H. P. McGuire	E. M. Zeller
John Dupuich	James Weed
W. O. Ferguson	Frank Parker
R. A. Canning

Of the above forty-three members twenty-one were present and responded to their names when called.

Conclusion of E. C. Ferguson, the roll was closed and two candidates for membership ordered to be balloted for by a open ballot to be appointed for that purpose.

It was then stated the election of officers to be held at the next meeting was in order, and the following were elected by acclamation:

President—J. M. Mooney and W. W. McGuire declined in favor of the latter gentleman.

First Lieutenant—E. P. Hall elected unanimously.

Second Lieutenant—T. Z. Hanson was the only candidate, and was elected unanimously.

Third Lieutenant—Geo. H. Riges received eleven votes and C. Canning ten, and the former was declared elected.

First Sergeant—P. Hill.

Second Sergeant—R. A. Canning.

Third Sergeant—W. Long.

Fourth Sergeant—F. Lent.

Committee on constitution and by-laws—Messrs. F. M. Manson, J. M. Mooney and W. E. Long.

Committee on constitution and by-laws—Messrs. E. C. Ferguson and Geo. Markel.

Committee on the inspection of arms—Messrs. Hall and Canning.

Committee on music—Messrs. F. M. Manson and W. E. Long.

The committee on constitution and by-laws were instructed to procure necessary blanks and report at the next meeting of the company.

The company was then addressed by Capt. Mooney, who stated that it was necessary to procure a hall for holding the meetings of the company, and intend to procure necessary
